

through a religious appeal. We do not want word to go out that we want to exterminate the Negro population and the Minister is the man who can straighten out that idea if it ever occurs to any of their more rebellious members".

Al Sharpton and Jesse Jackson are the two most notable examples of Black politicians who promote abortion.

Sanger's racial genocidal goals have unfortunately come to fruition.

It is estimated that 1 out of 4 white babies, 1 out of 3 brown babies and 2 out of 3 Black babies are being aborted today in the United States.

The minority communities have benefited neither socially or economically from an atrocity that is enthusiastically promoted by those who make 150 million dollars per year from dead African American babies; and by those who seek to entice the Black community to self-genocide through abortion. Therefore, the disproportionate number of abortions by Black Americans, as compared to our percentage of the general population, is more than a social phenomenon. It is destructive and genocidal.

The Alan Guttmacher Institute, Planned Parenthood's research arm, reported in January 2003, "Blacks who make up 14% of all childbearing women, have 31.7% of all abortions". This means that every five minutes four black children are killed by surgical abortion -- that's 1,452 every day; sacrificed for any or no reason. The seeds of the eugenics movement of which abortion is only one way it is manifested, are bearing a bountiful harvest. Black women are almost four times as likely as white women to have an abortion, and Hispanic women are 2.5 times as likely. Abortion businesses are frequently located in minority communities.

It is ironic that the Democratic Party, which has worked so hard to be the voice of the powerless and the voice-less would not champion the cause for innocent defenseless unborn human life. It's interesting that a party that was at the nucleus of the Civil Rights Movement would support less protection for the unborn child than almost any civilized country in the world.

We need to work harder in the political area to defeat Politicians on the national level who have sold their souls. For the most part, the Black and Hispanic political leadership in America supports abortion. These politicians need to be exposed for who they are: purveyors of death.

Don't be discouraged by the enormity of the task that lies ahead. Mother Teresa of Calcutta recognized that her efforts and those of her fellow Sisters of Charity were in her own words, a drop in a vast ocean of need, but she never wavered, and her legacy lives on today.

Taking a line from an old song, "What the world needs now is love, sweet love." It is only the love of God and the Love for God that will change our world.

"When the time comes, as it surely will, when we face that awesome moment, the final judgment, I've often thought, as Fulton Sheen wrote, that it is a terrible moment of loneliness. You have no advocates, you are there alone standing before God -- and a terror will rip your soul like nothing you can imagine. But I really think that those in the pro-life movement will not be alone. I think there'll be a chorus of voices that have never been heard in this world but are heard beautifully and clearly in the next world -- and they will plead for everyone who has been in this movement. They will say to God, 'Spare him, because he loved us!'"

ROE vs. WADE

On January 22, 1973, the United States Supreme Court decided to allow the Slaughter of the Innocents.

Victor R. Claveau, MJ

On December 8, 1941, President Franklin Roosevelt delivered a memorable speech to a joint session of Congress. In which he said:

"Yesterday, December 7, 1941- a date which will live in infamy- the United States of America was suddenly and deliberately attacked by naval and air forces of the Empire of Japan."

After recounting the events at Pearl Harbor, and the fact that the Japanese government had also launched attacks against Malaysia, Hong Kong, Guam, the Philippine, Wake and Midway Islands, He went on to say, "There is no blinking at the fact that our people, our territory and our interests are in grave danger." The President asked that Congress declare that a state of war existed between the United States and the Japanese Empire.

From 1941-1945, 450,000 American lives were lost; an average of 112,500 per year in what became known as the Second World War.

On January 22, 1973, another date which will forever live in infamy, the United States Supreme Court decided to allow the Slaughter of Innocents. This date has been seared into the minds and hearts of every American who recognizes the sanctity of each and every human life.

It has been estimated that since the decision came down from the court well over 48 million babies have been slaughtered on the tables of expediency and greed. This equates to 1,370,000+ deaths per year. That figure is greater than the entire populations of more than half of our states and the District of Columbia.

The Catholic Church is the only major Christian body which condemns direct abortion at any time or for any reason. Every other major Christian group in America attempts to justify abortion in cases of rape, incest, or the mental health of the mother.

The Catholic Church holds that all human life is a sacred gift of God. It does not matter how conception takes place or whether or not the child will be born with a physical or mental impairment or disability.

We live in an age of moral relativity; where situational ethics, is the norm. The attitude is that, the end does justify the means. Catholic moral teaching has always held that no evil may be justified by the conviction that it will lead to a good end.

The Holy Father Pope John Paul II taught in Veritatis Splendor (The Splendor of Truth) published August 6, 1993, that truth is absolute; it does not depend on the situation or circumstance. An action is good or bad, right or wrong, moral or immoral; there are no shades of gray.

In Veritatis Splendor, the Holy Father said that there are certain actions that are "incapable of being ordered" to God, because they radically contradict the good of the person made in his image. These are the acts which, in the Church's moral tradition, have been termed "intrinsically evil": in other words always evil regardless of the intention of the person committing the act.

The Second Vatican Council's Pastoral Constitution on the Church in the Modern World, Gaudium Et Spes, published December 7, 1965, discussed the respect due to the human person, and gives a number of examples of acts which are contrary to the dignity of man and are an affront to God:

"Whatever is hostile to life itself, such as any kind of homicide, genocide, abortion, euthanasia and voluntary suicide; whatever violates the integrity of the human person, such as mutilation, physical and mental torture and attempts to coerce the spirit; whatever is offensive to human dignity, such as subhuman living conditions, arbitrary imprisonment, deportation, slavery, prostitution and trafficking in women and children; degrading conditions of work which treat laborers as mere instruments of profit, and not as free responsible persons: all these and the like are a disgrace, and so long as they infect human civilization they contaminate those who inflict them more than those who suffer injustice, and they are a negation of the honor due to the Creator" (27).

These words are necessarily very strong. The people involved in these actions disgrace themselves before God and man and are in dire need of our prayer in order that they may turn their lives around and serve God by serving mankind.

We live in a secular society that is rapidly becoming amoral. Abortion is corrosive to every society, and has been eating away at the moral fiber of our nation for 35 years.

Atheistic materialism is not only condoned by the political leadership but is broadcast on network television, screened in Hollywood movies and is created on Madison Avenue. The majority of our current political leadership, duly elected by the will of the American people, have supported and defended the wanton destruction of over forty-eight million innocent victims on the altar of abortion.

U.S. foreign aid to third-world countries is usually predicated on the sterilization of the populace. The premise is that if families have fewer children they will have more discretionary income to spend on consumer goods; much of which is produced in the U.S.

Deviant sexuality is flaunted in gay-pride parades and pornography, a multi-billion dollar per year industry, located in California, is sold openly. It is also available in major hotel chains. Need I also mention the pornography and sexual license available on home television through Dish, Direct TV, or cable?

The state and federal prison populations are overflowing and the criminal justice system is overloaded. Abortion, usury, divorce, drug abuse, child abuse, gang-warfare, drive-by shootings, murder, theft, white-collar crime, racial and religious hatred, euthanasia, etc., are all indications of the failure of the "reformed" gospel that presupposes everyone will go to heaven, no matter what choices he or she makes, as long as a verbal declaration of allegiance to Christ has been made; the gospel that Christians can make individual evil choices yet retain a proper moral orientation.

There is a war going on between good and evil; between the Will of God and the will of Satan. Most people don't see it, or if they do, they look the other way, rationalizing that if it does not affect them at that present moment in time, that it is not worth addressing, or it's someone else's problem.

Scripture tells us that the sins of the fathers are said to be punished in their children, because the latter are the more prone to sin through being brought up amid their parents' crimes, both by becoming accustomed to them, and by imitating their parents' example, conforming to their authority as it were.

We are at war with an atheistic culture and we are losing by default. It is estimated that as many as 72% of the American population have no religious affiliation. More often than not, social evils are not addressed by religious leadership. Rather than Christians arguing among ourselves, we should be working together to change our society and the world.

The words of Franklin Roosevelt, "There is no blinking at the fact that our people, our territory and our interests are in grave danger", can easily be applied to the battle against abortion.

Abortion very often is touted as an economic solution for poor women, i.e., "Black or brown women." Strident, pro-abortion feminists cry for abortion as a "right" for which they must fight to keep.

Legal abortion was first popularized by a white woman, Margaret Sanger, the founder of the National Birth Control League, which is now known as Planned Parenthood.

Sanger claimed that her interest in limiting the size of families through contraceptive practices was awakened by the suffering of mothers who were weakened physically, or died on account of excessive pregnancies, abortions, and poor economic conditions. Her hostility towards the Catholic Church she attributed to the Church's uncompromising opposition to artificial contraception.

Sanger called for the sterilization of, in her words, "genetically inferior races". In 1939, after the organization changed its name from the American Birth Control League (ABCL) to the Birth Control Federation of America (BCFA), she organized her "Negro Project" and wrote "the poorer areas, particularly in the South... are producing alarmingly more than their share of future generations." "The most successful educational approach to the Negro is
